

HORLEY PHOTOGRAPHIC CLUB

Data Protection Policy

Personal data from all club members is collected and held by the club for its legitimate interests so that all members can be uniquely identified. Such data involves name, postal address, telephone numbers (landline and mobile) and email address.

In the course of its activity, the club will handle photographic images from members, and record entries to events and the corresponding results.

The club will also retain historical records containing specific members detail, such as in programmes and minutes of meetings. This will include details of award winners.

While competing in external competitive events, the club will submit to the organisers of such events, whatever personal information is requested of the members whose images have been selected to represent the club. This is likely to comprise of names.

A list of our members' details is kept and circulated to the committee when updated. A list of members' email addresses is circulated to other members. Neither of these lists is passed on to an outside organisation.

Please sign below if you agree to your details being included in these lists. If you decide to leave the club all your details will be deleted.
